

Cross-Cultural Training

Murphy Associates' In the Workplace series offers an array of cross-cultural presentations that address many of the cultures found in today's workplace. These programs serve to introduce employers and employees to the values, behaviors, traditions, customs and beliefs of these cultures and also provide a snapshot overview of the American culture for comparison. A small language component is included with most programs. The Doing Business In series combines cross-cultural and survival language skills training to educate business professionals about doing business in other countries.
